

The Lollipop Kephart Loop to Charlies Bunion

For me this was a challenging hike, for two reasons. one, it's a long uphill and a long downhill with not much elevation change in between. Two, the viewpoint, or the Bunion in this case is a tad more dangerous than I'd like. So for those reasons it was more than just another Sunday morning activity!

Clocking in at 14.58 miles that we accomplished in a respectable 2.2 miles per hour. The route we took wound through a variety of landscapes. As you can see, it takes on a "lollipop appearance" when viewed as a GPS track. As usual, it was memorable for the adventure, camaraderie, personal achievements and a little tumble.
